REVIEWS OF THE YOKOHAMA CLASS B
AND CLASS C WAR CRIMES TRIALS BY
THE U.S. EIGHTH ARMY JUDGE ADVOCATE
1946-1949

On the 5 rolls of this microfilm publication are reproduced the reviews of 314 class B and class C war crimes cases by the Office of the Staff Judge Advocate, U.S. 8th Army. The reviews pertain to cases tried in Yokohama, Japan, by U.S. military commissions appointed by Headquarters, U.S. 8th Army, and involve such crimes as torture, ceremonial murder, acts of revenge, misuse of command responsibility, mistreatment of prisoners of war and civilian populations, and illegal medical experiments conducted on prisoners of war. The reviews are part of the records of the Legal Section of the Supreme Commander, Allied Powers, in Records of Allied Operational and Occupation Headquarters, World War II, Record Group (RG) 331. The records contain trial dates, personal data of the accused, synopses of charges, findings, pleas, and legal reviews. There are summaries of prosecution and defense evidence and the opinions and recommendations of the Staff Judge Advocate.

Background

Since early 1942, various world leaders, including Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek of China and U.S. Vice President Henry A. Wallace, had called for the punishment of Japanese war criminals. The trial of Japanese war criminals was not a certainty, however, until the Potsdam Proclamation of the leaders of the Allied Powers in 1945, which stated: "We do not intend that the Japanese should be enslaved as a race or destroyed as a nation, but stern justice shall be meted out to all war criminals including those who have visited cruelties upon our prisoners."

By signing the instrument of Japanese surrender, the Japanese Plenipotentiaries Mamoru Shigemitsu and Yoshijiro Umezu, who were later tried by the International Tribunal for the Far East (IMTFE), accepted for Japan the provisions of the Potsdam Proclamation. The U.S. Joint Chiefs of Staff charged Gen. Douglas MacArthur, the Supreme Commander, Allied Powers (SCAP), with the implementation of the war criminals program, which called for investigation, detention and trial of persons suspected of war crimes. Trial authorities grouped Japanese war crimes cases into three classes--class A, or major, cases, tried by the IMTFE, and class B and C cases, tried for the most part by military commissions appointed by the commanding general, U.S. 8th Army. Class A war crimes cases involved planning, initiation, and waging wars of aggression. Class B and C cases, on the other hand, mostly 'concerned violations of the laws of war, including atrocities committed against civilians, races, groups, and prisoners of war.

Class A War Crimes Trials

At the end of April 1946, General MacArthur proclaimed a charter for the IMTFE, which was later modified by members of the tribunal and prosecution staffs of various member countries and approved by the Far Eastern Commission, which supervised policy making for the Far East. The charter of the IMTFE called for a multinational tribunal to try cases involving conventional war crimes, crimes against humanity, and crimes against the peace. The charter ensured the accused of certain rights, including the right to be represented by counsel and to offer evidence in their own behalf. The charter suspended ordinary rules of evidence, making hearsay admissible as evidence provided it had probative value.

From May 3, 1946, to November 12, 1948, the IMTFE tried the class A cases, involving 28 individuals, about half of which were army officers. Naval officers, cabinet ministers, other officials, and propagandists comprised the remainder of the defendants. The IMTFE sentenced 7 of the accused to death, 16 to life imprisonment, and 2 to prison terms of a number of years. The other three defendants died or became insane before sentencing.

Class B and C War Crimes Trials

Following authorization by SCAP on December 5, 1945, the commanding general, U.S. 8th Army, began to appoint military commissions to try class B and class C war crimes cases, mainly in Yokohama. The commissions at Yokohama tried 996 class B and class C defendants. They acquitted 142, and sentenced 124 to death, 63 to life imprisonment and the remainder to prison terms of varying length.

A reviewer from the Office of the Judge Advocate General of the U.S. 8th Army examined each class B and C case to determine whether the tribunal had committed any legal errors to the disadvantage of the accused. He developed a synopsis of the facts and an opinion and recommended approval or disapproval of the findings of the tribunals. Often, trials involving findings of not guilty did not go through the reviewing process. The U.S. 8th Army Judge Advocate then examined the review, together with the record of the trial, and either added his opinions and recommendations or concurred with the findings of the reviewer. Thereupon he passed the review to the commanding general for final action, which in most cases confirmed life sentences and prison terms. Death sentences passed through an additional review and required confirmation by SCAP. The Supreme Commander confirmed death sentences of 51 individuals and ordered them executed; he reduced most of the remaining death sentences to prison terms.

In addition to the trials in Yokohama, other class B and class C trials took place in Shanghai and Manila. Also the U.S. Navy tried a number of war crimes cases on Pacific islands such as Kwajalein in the Marshall Islands. The reviews of all these trials have great value for research, because they contain short and easily manageable summaries of the often voluminous records of Japanese war crimes trials.

Records Description

The reviews of the class B and C cases are arranged by case, or docket number, from 1 through 371. Of these, only 319 reached the trial stage, and a few did not require review because the commission acquitted the defendants. Thus there are no reviews for the following case numbers:

38	101	116	209	275	324
62	103	125	213	280	332
64	105	141	215	284	333
79	108	148	217	285	341
87	109	161	245	293	343
89	110	170	246	302	345
93	111	192	247	303	350
95	112	196	257	309	355
96	113	201	261	322	359
98	114	207	269	323	360
					367

There are also docket numbers 39A, 173A, and 194A. The reviews range from 2 to 154 pages in length, with the majority running less than 20 pages.

The personal data on the accused includes name, occupation, age, and military career information. Synopses of charges often contain specification of charges, although pleas and findings are usually given in the brief form of "guilty" or "not guilty." Summaries of defense and prosecution evidence include not only exhibits but also oral court testimony. The reviewers' opinion normally deals with the fairness and the legality of the trial. It is followed in the arrangement of the records by the recommendation of the reviewing officer of the Judge Advocate Section regarding sentence and place of confinement. A differing opinion or a concurrence by the chief of the section completes the review. The name of the commanding general of the U.S. 8th Army appears at the end of some of the early reviews.

At the beginning of roll 1 are filmed the following key documents from which the class B and class C trials at Yokohama derived their jurisdiction: the Potsdam Proclamation of July 26, 1945; the charter of the International Military Tribunal for the Far East; the Far Eastern Commission Policy Decision of April 3, 1946; Regulations Governing the Trial of Accused War Criminals of December 5, 1945, by SCAP; and Rules of Procedure and Outline of Procedure for Trial of Accused War Criminals of February 5, 1946, by the commanding general, U.S. 8th Army. Two lists of names of individuals tried at Yokohama serve as finding aids; these lists follow this introduction as Appendixes A and B. The first list is arranged alphabetically by last name of accused, with the docket number of the case preceding the name; the other is arranged numerically by docket number.
